networking of scientists

Networking Opportunities Second Annual VIVO Conference

August 24-26, 2011
Gaylord National, Washington D.C.

Join us for a unique opportunity to network with more than 250 professionals spanning a variety of industries and academic fields, including information technology, federal funding agencies, higher education and academia, research and publishing.

The VIVO conference exists to allow a national network of scientists, including professionals from around the globe, to come together in the spirit of promoting scholarly collaboration and research discovery. The Second Annual VIVO Conference is a great opportunity to network with more than 250 professionals in higher education and research, including scientists, developers, publishers, funding agencies, research officers and institutional representatives. Here's a quick glance at the networking opportunities from the 2010 VIVO conference:
